Logline

An animated film following Danny, a university Geography tutor in his 30s, as he embarks on a cutting edge academic project which has nothing to do with his ex-wife.

Synopsis

Intricately handmade from paper and cardboard, this stop-motion animated tragicomedy follows Danny, a university Geography tutor, as he and his students stray from the syllabus in order to break new academic ground. After managing only to break some homewares, Danny is forced to confront the true nature of his project.

Director Bio

Paul Neason was born in the deep south of New Zealand and now co-runs a boutique animation and video studio, National Park, in Wellington, the nation's capital. He studied Classics at the University of Otago, Graphic Design at Massey University in Wellington, but is mostly self-taught at animation. Queenie is his first short film.
